The 100th Issue!

The Beckett Media staff is having a celebration. It's our 100th issue of Beckett Unofficial Guide to Pokémon.

The first issue of this magazine premiered in July of 1999 and since then it has gone through several evolutions, just like Charizard. The first 40 issues were primarily focused on Pokémon. By 2003, the interest in Pokémon started to slow down a bit, so anime coverage was added. After seven issues had passed, anime became so popular that the magazine's title was changed to Beckett Anime. Thirty issues later, Manga became part of the magazine. Many anime and manga titles such as InuYasha, Dragonball Z, Fruits Basket and Naruto were in high demand. In 2006, something wonderful happened: a renewed interest in Pokémon enabled us to happily bring the magazine's title back to its beginnings.

That was the year the Pokémon franchise celebrated its 10th anniversary. Pokémon companies in both Japan and the United States celebrated 10 years of Pikachu, Ash and the release of over 300 monsters. The celebration became a worldwide event and new fans began popping up everywhere. The publicity brought back so many great memories to millions of former fans that many of them got back into playing and collecting Pokémon.

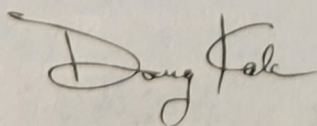

To celebrate our 100th issue, we've compiled lots of goodies for you including the Ultimate Guide to Pokémon #100-Voltorb, 10 years of the video games, the Top 50 Pokémon as voted by the fans, the Top 10 Best Moments from the TV series and so much more.

Plus, after releasing 100 issues of this magazine, I've personally selected my top five favorite covers. You can see them inside on page 39.

I'd also like to give a big thank you to everyone who has subscribed to this magazine, especially to those who have stayed with the publication through its many changes.

Catch 'em all,

Doug Kale

UPCOMING RELEASES FOR POKÉMON

FIND OUT WHAT'S COMING OUT IN 2008

By Sean Cooper

With the release of Pokémon Diamond & Pearl and Pokémon Battle Revolution, 2007 was a big year for Pokémon. Will 2008 be as eventful for Pokémon? Read on to find out!

Super Smash Bros. Brawl

Release Date: March 9, 2008 (US)

Super Smash Bros. Brawl is one of the most anticipated titles on the Nintendo Wii in 2008. If you own a Nintendo Wii, you can't afford to miss out on this game! What I'm looking forward to most is the ability to battle my friends online for the first time ever. The best part about Wi-Fi in this game is that you'll be able to battle both friends and random opponents.

If you're a Pokémon fan like me, you're also looking forward to all of the new and returning Pokémon content. I think it's going to be really cool to be able to play as the Pokémon Trainer; what's better than being able to choose between Squirtle, Ivysaur and Charizard and perform their respective attacks? I also know that the orchestral soundtrack, including Pokémon theme songs, is going to be awesome as always.

My favorite item in previous Smash Bros. games was the Poké Ball. With the addition of 3rd and 4th generation Pokémon with all-new devastating attacks, I can't wait to throw a Poké Ball at my opponent and hope for the best, as long as it's not a useless Splash attack from Goldeen. Overall, Brawl looks to be a solid party game and with the addition of even more Pokémon content, this is a game you can't miss!

Dialga vs. Palkia vs. Darkrai

Expected Release Date: Spring 2008 (US)

Ever since Pokémon USA has taken over the dubbing from 4Kids, the movies and anime have been getting dubbed a lot quicker. Based on that, I expect the 10th Pokémon movie to be released directly to DVD around March, 2008. As was the case with past Pokémon films, legendary Pokémon are the focus of this film. The basic plot is that a town Ash, Brock and Dawn are visiting is getting destroyed. The townspeople blame it on Darkrai, but before condemning Darkrai, Ash does a bit of investigating and discovers that Dialga and Palkia caused the damage.

While the story isn't the most original, I think that it's a lot better than the 9th Pokémon movie, Pokémon Ranger and the Temple of the Sea. The movie reminds me a lot of Destiny Deoxys, where legendary Pokémon wreak havoc, Ash is sort of thrown in the middle, and he sets out to stop them and set things right. As with all Pokémon films, I think the soundtrack is phenomenal – let's just hope Pokémon USA doesn't completely redo it when it's released stateside. In the end this is a very action-filled movie – the best Pokémon movie since Destiny Deoxys. I'd expect Toys 'R' Us to do a Darkrai give-away around the release date of the movie.

Pokémon Mystery Dungeon 2

Expected Release Date: Spring 2008 (US)

With the success of Pokémon Mystery Dungeon, it's no surprise Nintendo came out with a sequel called Pokémon Mystery Dungeon 2 (PMD2). The question becomes: is it truly worthy? As with the previous game, PMD2 includes all available Pokémon (excluding Shaymin and Arceus). In the game-play department, there is a greater emphasis on the exploration of dungeons, which is a welcomed addition since I thought that rescuing Pokémon got rather tedious in the prequel. However, I was disappointed that hunger was kept, since it was pretty annoying as well. Friend Areas have also been omitted and the Pelipper Post Office has been replaced with two message boards, but these don't seem to be big changes.

In terms of story, it's more complex than the first game, but it's still along the same lines – you're a human trapped in the form of a Pokémon. The most disappointing thing I found about PMD2 is that it isn't backwards compatible with its predecessors – you can't transfer your Pokémon to PMD2. I guess this makes sense since this isn't your ordinary Pokémon RPG, but it would have been a nice feature to have. Overall Pokémon Mystery Dungeon 2 has made some minor game-play improvements, but little has changed from the original. If you didn't like Pokémon Mystery Dungeon and found it repetitive like me, you won't like its sequel.

Pokémon Ranger 2

Expected Release Date: Fall 2008 (JP)

In Issue 97, it was revealed that a sequel to Pokémon Ranger was on the horizons in Japan. This is great news for Pokémon fans because Nintendo is actually following up on one of their non-core Pokémon RPG games, as opposed to abandoning them like Pokémon Snap. As was the case with the first Ranger game, I fully expect the game to be based around rescuing Pokémon with the Pokémon on your team. There's no excuse for the creators to not include all Pokémon available in Pokémon Diamond & Pearl – if they only include 213 Pokémon like last time, I will be very disappointed.

It would also be nice to see some new Pokémon attacks, since some attacks from the prequel were rather useless. I found the prequel fun, but it was a very short game – I would like to see Ranger 2 include more missions than its predecessor. It would also be neat to see more connectivity between other Pokémon games like Pokémon Diamond & Pearl. Lastly, I would like to see Ranger 2 utilize the touch screen as well as its prequel. As a whole, Pokémon Ranger was easily my favorite Pokémon game outside of the core RPG games, so if you loved the prequel, be sure to get the sequel.

Giratina and the Sky's Bouquet

Release Date: July 19, 2008 (JP)

Just recently in Japan, the title was officially announced for the 11th Pokémon movie – the original teaser was aired at the end of the 10th Pokémon movie in Japan. When I saw the preview that aired after an episode of Pokémon in Japan, I noticed that quite a few legendary Pokémon made an appearance: Giratina, Dialga, Palkia and Regigigas. The current belief among Pokémon fans on the Internet is that Shaymin will be revealed later on before the movie is released.

Not much is known about the plot, but from what I've heard so far it sounds like a very good movie. First of all, unlike movies in the past, this film will be a direct sequel to the 10th movie – for the first time ever the same legendary Pokémon (Palkia and Dialga) will appear in consecutive Pokémon movies. The 10th Pokémon movie was very good, so I expect this movie to be even better! As long as the movie takes place in another luscious environment and Ash's role is kept to a minimum, I think this could become a contender for the best Pokémon movie yet!

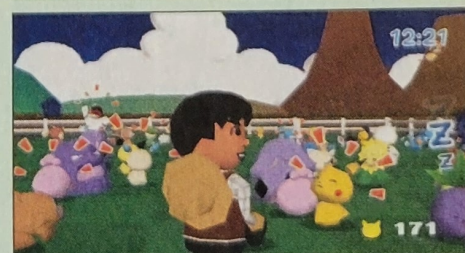

Pokémon Ranch Channel

Expected Release Date: Spring 2008 (JP)

Available for download on the Nintendo Wii, this WiiWare title will allow players to transfer their Pokémon from Pokémon Diamond & Pearl so that they can interact with their Mii. Not much is known about this game besides the fact that it takes place on a ranch. From looking at the trailer released, I can say that I am very disappointed with the quality of the graphics; even for a Wii title, they are overly simplistic and nowhere near "next gen." I hope the gameplay is similar to Animal Crossing or Harvest Moon because those are two excellent titles and I wouldn't have a problem with it if Nintendo borrowed from their game mechanics.

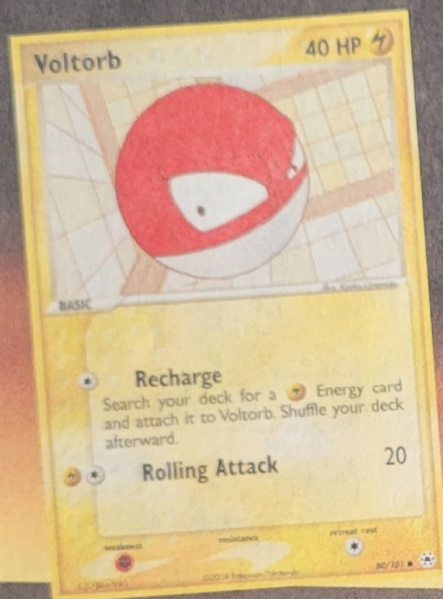

Based on the trailer released, this isn't going to be a complicated game, but it may keep you entertained for a while until the next Pokémon game is released on the Wii – plus, it won't cost as much as a regular Wii title. ♦

So there you have it - my thoughts on the upcoming Pokémon releases for 2008. Which release are you most excited about? Please let us know by visiting the Beckett Pokémon Forums (<http://www.beckett.com/Pokemonforum/>). 2008 has just begun – I'm sure there will be more amazing Pokémon releases announced in the coming months, so stay tuned!

VOLTORB!

By Alex Lucard

Seeing as this is the 100th issue of the magazine, I thought it would be great to look at Pokémon #100 from the National Pokédex. Sit back and join me for an in-depth look at this Pokémon with an explosive personality.

- Voltorb is a very odd Pokémon as it looks exactly like a Poké Ball. Its evolution, Electrode, looks like an upside down Poké Ball. It is unknown whether the Poké Ball or Voltorb came first. I believe the Poké Ball actually came first because the first sighting of Voltorb was in the lab where the latest line of Poké Balls was invented. It makes you wonder if there is a Pokémon out there that looks like an Apricorn (the original material used to make Poké Balls).

- Voltorb has a perchance for exploding. Its two signature moves are Explosion and Self Destruct. Although they are very powerful, using either move causes Voltorb to faint, regardless of whether or not its opponent is damaged enough to faint as well.

- Voltorb is a genderless Pokémon. This means you can only breed Voltorb by pairing it with a Ditto.

- In the video game Pokémon Ranger, Voltorb is a popular Pokémon to have around because it recharges the Hit Points of your Capture Styler.

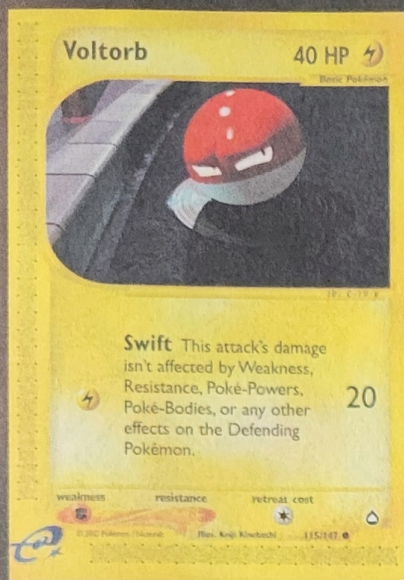

- Voltorb is one of the very first cards in the original Base set for the TCG. Here Voltorb is an electric type with 40 Hit Points and a single attack called Tackle. Tackle requires one Colorless energy and it does a meager 10 damage. As you can imagine, Voltorb isn't used that much. It's evolution, Electrode, isn't much better.

- A Shiny Voltorb is dark blue instead of red.

- Voltorb is commonly used in the RPGs by NPCs or as wild Pokémon in dungeons. However, it is rarely used by players due to its low stats. Voltorb's chief stat is Speed.

- Voltorb has shown up in the anime primarily as comic relief, usually exploding on Team Rocket or Ash and his friends. Voltorb's biggest role in the cartoon came in an episode called "The Underground Round Up." This episode is towards the very end of the Orange Island season, and it features Ash, Misty and Tracey. This episode revolves around an island that the Electrode have taken over and scared away all the humans that used to live on it. Togepi meets and befriends a baby Voltorb and the two play together, even though Misty is constantly terrified Voltorb is going to explode. In the end, the Electrode and humans find a way to share the island thanks to a group of Diglett and Dugtrio making the Electrode an underground series of tunnels to play and explode in. Voltorb ends up staying on the island, which makes Togepi very sad and cry.

- In the Next Quest base set for the Pokémon TFG, there is a Voltorb figure. Voltorb's signature attack in NO is Explosion, which knocks out Voltorb and any adjacent Pokémon. If used properly, Voltorb can take out a lot of your opponent's Pokémon and he is arguably the best Speedster in the game.

- Voltorb shows up in the Team Rocket expansion for the CCG. Here Voltorb is still an Electric type Pokémon with 40 Hit Points, but it has a new attack called Speed Ball. Speed Ball requires one Electric energy and does 20 damage. It's slightly better than the original Voltorb card, but still isn't a top-tier card.

- Voltorb can have one of two Pokémon abilities in the RPGs. The first is called Soundproof and it makes the Voltorb immune to any sound based attacks. The other is Static. If Voltorb is hit with a physical attack, there is a 30% chance the attacker will be afflicted with the Paralyze status. Static is definitely the more preferred ability of the two, so if you want a Voltorb on your Pokémon team, keep catching Voltorbs until you find one with this ability.

- If you want a Voltorb for your Pokémon team in Pokémon Mystery Dungeon, you can find it in two different places. The first is in Thunderwave Cave between the third and fifth floors. The other location is Wish Cave, on the eighth to tenth floors. Make sure you have the Power Plant friend area or you won't be able to recruit it!

- One of the better Voltorb cards in the CCG is Lt. Surge's Voltorb. Again it's an Electric type with 40 Hit Points, but it has two moves – each one significantly better than anything Voltorb has had in the past. The first move is called Spin Ball. It requires one Electric energy and Voltorb's owner must flip a coin. If it comes up heads, Voltorb does 20 damage. Otherwise it does nothing. The second attack is called Double Spin and it's exactly the same as Spin Ball, but you flip two coins, giving Voltorb a chance at doing 40 damage, which is a lot more than the other Voltorb cards we've looked at so far.

- In Pokémon XD, there is a Shadow Voltorb that you will have to snag and purify. Remember, purifying all of the Shadow Pokémon gives you a chance to purify Shadow Lugia.

- With Diamond/Pearl, Voltorb has a new attack that makes it playable in tournament settings. The move is called Gyro Ball. It is a Steel Type attack, and the damage done through it varies depending on the Pokémon's Speed. As Voltorb's Speed can easily reach over 300, well... you can just imagine the amount of damage this can do. This attack is especially great as it is a physical attack, but it overrides Voltorb's usually low Attack stat. To make it even better, evolve your Voltorb into an Electrode. Electrodes can have Speed stats over 400!

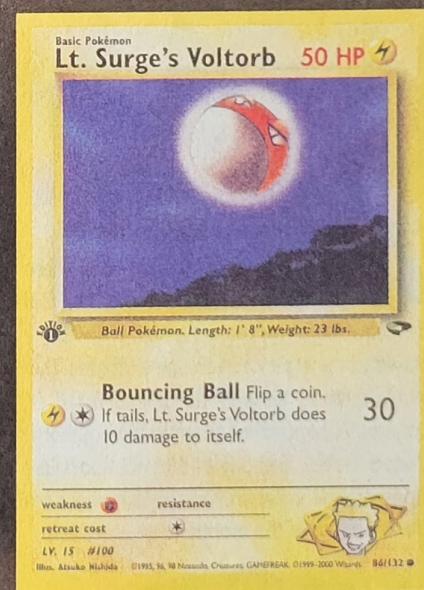

- At the website, Kaboose.com, there are instructions for children on how to make their very own Voltorb (or Electrode) shaped fan. The exact link is <http://crafts.kaboose.com/voltorb-and-electrode-fan.html>. It's a great little arts and crafts project and a fun way to stay cool on a warm Summer day.

- Voltorb makes another appearance in the Pokémon CCG expansion set Legend Makers. Here Voltorb is an Electric type with 50 Hit Points and it has two attacks. The first is Thunder Wave. Thunder Wave requires a single Colorless energy and Voltorb's Trainer must flip a coin. If the coin comes up heads, the opposing Pokémon is Paralyzed. The second attack is Bouncing Ball. Bouncing Ball requires one Electric and one Colorless energy and it does 30 damage to the opposing Pokémon, but also 10 damage to Voltorb.

- In the very first episode of the Pokémon anime series, Ash has an alarm clock shaped like a Voltorb.

- Voltorb is quite heavy for its size. It is only 1'08" tall, yet it weighs 23 pounds. It's hard to believe such a portly little Pokémon is one of the fastest!

- Voltorb, to me, is one of the more interesting Pokémon, even if it is generally overlooked in all forms of Pokémania. Voltorb always makes for great comic relief in the cartoon, or as a surprise battle in the video games. One of my favorite moments with Voltorb and Electrode comes from the video game Pokémon Snap. My best picture in the game was of them using the Explosion attack. There's something about a life form evolving to look like its own instrument of capture that appeals to the Blade Runner fan in me. Who knows? Maybe some day we'll learn Voltorbs were artificially created the same way Mewtwo was! ♦

THE REAL-LIFE POKÉMON

Crawdaunt

THIS POKÉMON'S PROBABLY NOT A FAN OF CAJUN COOKING

By Alex Lucard

Although Ash's Corphish never evolved into Crawdaunt, they share the same real world origin. The real life Crawdaunt has many names: crawfish, crawdad, crodger or even spiny lobster. The most common name for this animal is the crayfish. A popular foodstuff in the southern United States, and one of the most popular types of pets in Japan, the crayfish is our real life Pokémon of the month.

Meet Crawdaunt, the Crawdad

Crayfish are small crustaceans that live in fresh water. They breathe through gills and can be found most often in warmer bodies of water in North America, which boasts 330 different types of crayfish. Australia is another large home to crayfish, sporting over 100 species of the animal. They are primarily dark brown, but crayfish can also be found in green and yellow hues. Crayfish are known as decapod crustaceans, which means that they have ten legs, with the two front legs being giant claws used for gripping, grabbing and cracking things open. Be very careful with these claws, because if a crayfish gets hold of one of your fingers or toes, it'll hurt!

The older a crayfish gets the more nocturnal it becomes. Thus you can generally tell the age of a crayfish by the time of day you encounter one in the wild. This is partly why the Crawdaunt is a Dark type Pokémon in addition to being a Water type. Corphish is just a Water type as it is a younger crayfish. Crawdaunt's name is a pun on one of the regional slang terms for the crayfish: crawdad.

The average crayfish is about three inches long. A crayfish's body is divided into nineteen segments with the two main parts being the cephalothorax and the abdomen. The cephalothorax is what we would consider the head and thorax regions of the crayfish. Like all crustaceans, the crayfish has a hard exoskeleton which protects its body from the elements and danger. The exoskeleton is primarily made up of a substance called chitin. Because an exoskeleton is very rigid and hard, it doesn't leave a young crayfish room to grow or get bigger. In order to get bigger, crayfish undergo a process known as molting. Molting is similar to how a cat or dog sheds their hair. However, when a crayfish molts their exoskeleton, they are now exposed and soft, making them very vulnerable to predators and other dangers. A crayfish must be very careful after molting and make sure they have a safe place to hide. Baby crayfish can molt daily, but the molting process slows down as they get both older and bigger.

If you have a pet crayfish, as is popular in Japan, you can always tell when the crayfish is about to molt. First it will slow down and stop eating as much. This doesn't mean the crayfish is sick (as it would with other animals). It just means it is storing energy for the molting process. Then, the crayfish will look for a dark hiding spot, so that it will be safe while molting. For this reason, make sure your aquarium is full of toys and items for it to play with and hide under. Once the crayfish has chosen its hiding spot, it will back into the chosen location and make sure its back is against the wall so anything that comes in will have to deal with the crayfish's mighty pincers. Once the crayfish is sure it is safe, it will lie on its back and will begin to swing its legs and pincers wildly. After a few minutes of this effort, the exoskeleton will begin to crack and break off. The entire process of cracking the old shell takes about five minutes, and usually the old exoskeleton is more or less whole, giving you something truly remarkable to look at. Don't try to take it out of the water though. The crayfish, which will now be larger due to the growing process, will need to eat the old skeleton to replace they do, many baby crayfish are eaten by fish and other aquatic life forms. Because there are so many babies per mother, the species is guaranteed to survive and go on to spawn another new generation.

Crayfish are a popular food stuff all around the world, except in Japan where the popularity of the animal as a food is no doubt diminished due to how it is viewed more as a pet.

98% of the crayfish used for food in the United States come from Louisiana and as such, crayfish have become synonymous with Creole or Cajun cooking. A popular Cajun crayfish dish is called a

"Crawfish Boil." This is generally a large meal done for a party, family reunion or other get-together featuring many people. Anywhere from forty to a hundred pounds of crayfish can be used as they are boiled with potatoes, onions, lemons, garlic, andouille sausage, corn and seasonings. Like a lobster, the claws and tails are considered the yummiest part of the crayfish. It's a tasty meal, although if Crawdaunt is one of your favorite Pokémon, I can understand if you sit that meal out.

Although very small, the crayfish is one of the most recognized crustaceans in the world. Whether it's being worshiped in Ancient Peru as a god, kept as a pet in Japan, or served with Sichuan pepper and hot chili in China, the crayfish is a versatile animal that has lived side by side with humans for thousands of years and will no doubt continue to do so for thousands more. ❖ the calcium it has lost in order to make its new exoskeleton hard.

If you do decide to keep a crayfish as a pet, realize they are very shy and scared of humans. Much of its time in your aquarium will be spent hiding under everything from an overturned toy boat to burying itself under leaves and rocks. It is also a good idea to keep it by itself or with just another crayfish as company. This is because crayfish are omnivores and will eat just about anything. They prefer shrimp pellets, tropical fish food and very finely cut up vegetables, but if there are small fish in the tank with your crayfish, it will try to catch them with its claws and then eat them as well. Generally the crayfish will hide until the fish gets tired and drops to the bottom of the aquarium. Then it will lunge from its hiding place and eat the tired and unsuspecting fish.

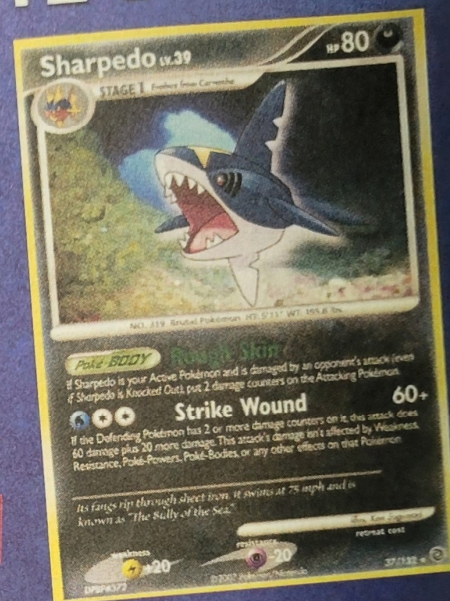

Crayfish live for about two years. Because their lifespan is so short, they female crayfish produces and lays up to 800 eggs during a mating period. The eggs are attached to the underside of her abdomen. Because the cluster of eggs looks like a blackberry when they are first laid (although the eggs turn translucent as they come closer to hatching), a female crayfish in this state is said to be "in berry." It takes two to twenty weeks for the eggs to hatch, and even when

SHARPEDO

AND THE GREAT WHITE SHARK

By Lora Shinn

On a December morning in 1963, Rodney Fox's life changed forever.

As Rodney participated in a spear-fishing competition in warm Australian waters, danger approached. Attracted by the scent of dying fish, a great white shark cut through the water like a sleek knife.

He clamped down on Rodney's chest. Rodney tried poking the great white's stony eye, but his arm slipped, and instead went into the shark's razor-sharp mouth.

Running out of air and bleeding profusely, Rodney knew he was also running out of time.

As Rodney swam furiously back towards his boat, the great white pursued him, dragging him down once more. But the determined diver made it back to his boat, and then to the hospital, where 462 stitches pieced his arm and chest back together. Despite physicians' efforts, a shark tooth fragment stayed permanently embedded in Rodney's arm.

You might think that Rodney would've wanted revenge.

But today, Rodney works tirelessly to help the great whites and leads dive groups into the sea to observe them first-hand. Even Rodney Fox, survivor of one of the most bloody and ruthless shark attacks, finds this fearsome fish... fascinating.

A Swimming Garbage Can?

Weighing two tons and up to 20 feet long, great whites can live anywhere in the world. However, they prefer the warm ocean waters off Australia, South Africa, California and other temperate coastlines. That's where they find their choice chow – scrumptious sea lions and seals, and fatty fish.

Like a whale, a great white pops his head above the sea's surface to zero in on prey.

Called "spy-hopping," this tricky tactic allows the shark to look for tasty treats on islands, along coastlines or even in boats.

Once they've spotted their meal, great whites attack using a dash 'n dine technique. After sneaking up from below or behind, the shark strikes at high speed, practically leaping out of the water. In 1936, a great white shark hitched a ride by jumping onto a fishing boat in South Africa – causing a sailor to fall into the sea below.

When the great white bites, he shakes his head from side to side, ripping off morsels with serrated teeth resembling a bread knife. In just one bite, a shark can tear off up to 31 pounds of sea lion. And sharks don't savor their food slowly. In fact, they'll even swallow their own teeth while wolfing down dinner. Sharks aren't picky eaters. Like a "swimming garbage can," they'll take a bite of buoys, shoes, tires, starfish and anything else that looks interesting. Great whites will eat each other, if hungry enough. They're carnivorous cannibals.

Latin name: Carcharodon carcharias.

"Carcharodon" comes from the original Greek meaning "jagged tooth."

Other common names: White pointer, white death

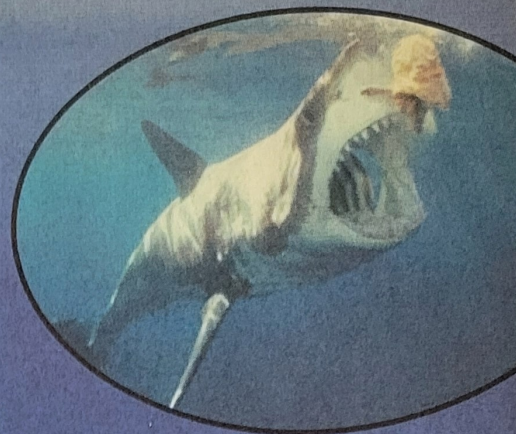

Length: 6 to 12 feet

Weight: Up to 5,000 lbs.

Native habitat: The west and east coast of the USA, Hawaii and most coastlines worldwide.

Fun fact: A shark's "bones" are composed of cartilage – which is also the stuff your ears and nose bridge are made from.

The Great White Death

Do you remember what makes a great white salivate? That's right, savory seal.

The shark is also known as "The Great White Death." But dogs murder more people each year. Since 1900, only 17 swimmers have died due to a great white encounter.

When human snorkelers wear fins or swim out on surfboards, they resemble a seal from below. Most great white attacks on humans take place when the ocean's water is murky or the light is poor.

Biologists think that encounters are due to mistaken identity, not the great white's bloodthirsty desire for a snorkel-snack.

Sharks are also attracted by the scent or electrical impulses of dying fish. The shark chasing Rodney probably wanted fresh fish, not fresh Fox.

Great white bites are often just a sample – they come in for a taste, but stop attacking after they realize that this human isn't a seal, after all.

Saving Sharks

For every human killed by a shark, humans kill millions of sharks. Great whites get caught in driftnets, or are captured for their fins, teeth and jaws by sport fishermen. Fins become an ingredient in shark-fin soup; the shark's teeth and jaws sell for thousands of dollars to collectors.

Listed as an endangered species in 2004, the great white is in peril – with populations declining between 60-95% in the past 50 years.

Many people don't feel sympathy for the great white's plight; they see the shark as a dangerous predator. However, experts -- like Rodney Fox -- say that such curious and complex creatures should be protected. Rodney started the Fox Shark Research Foundation to correct misinformation and provide fun facts, hoping that more people will care about this monstrous fish. On the Fox Shark Research Foundation website, you can read shark cartoons or even "adopt" a shark.

So next time you lay Sharpedo down to knock out your opponent, think of the great white that inspired him. And just say no to shark-fin soup. ❖

10 YEARS OF PO

THE GAMES THAT MADE POKÉMON SUCCESSFUL

By Sean Cooper

With Beckett Unofficial Guide to Pokémon reaching the milestone of 100 issues, I thought it would be the perfect time to take a look at the last 10 years of Pokémon games. Over this span of time, more than 25 Pokémon games have been released with more to come. We're going to start from the beginning and continue forward to the present. Due to the vast number of games, I'll only cover the main RPG games.

Pokémon Red and Pokémon Blue

Release Date: September 1, 1998

Platform: Game Boy

These are the games that started it all and single-handedly boosted the Game Boy's sales by over 200%! With combined sales of over 20 million, it was obvious that players loved the games, but why? Quite simply, it was unlike any video game that came before it. When I first played Pokémon I was amazed that I could transfer Pokémon via the Game Link Cable. This alone made Pokémon a hit at the schoolyard. I remember walking through the lunchroom in seventh grade and all the kids would be battling or trading Pokémon – it was simply amazing! The first time I played Pokémon I couldn't put it down. I had never played an RPG game before, but I was instantly addicted to its fun and easy gameplay.

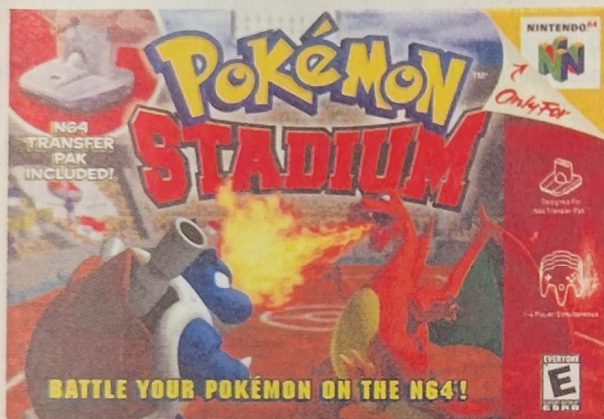

Pokémon Yellow: Special Pikachu Edition

Release Date: October 1, 1999

Platform: Game Boy

Based on the Pokémon anime, Pokémon Yellow became the fastest selling video game of its time. I enjoyed this game because you were able to get Pikachu along with Bulbasaur, Charmander and Squirtle. I also liked the Surfing Pikachu game where you did flips to get points. By this time, Pokémon was even more popular at school, as everyone and their brother had Pokémon – it was even hard to find at most retail stores!

POKÉMON GAMES

Pokémon Stadium

Release Date: March 6, 2000

Platform: Nintendo 64

Pokémon had a successful debut on the Nintendo 64, selling over 2.5 million copies. Pokémon Stadium was unlike the RPG games; it was a battle engine to battle against friends and the computer. A lot of people don't know this, but the Pokémon Stadium game released in the US is actually the second Stadium game – the first game was never released outside of Japan. The first time I played Stadium, I was impressed with the 3D graphics and orchestral music. It was a great party game – I invited my friends over many times to play Pokémon mini-games. Pokémon Stadium was revolutionary because it allowed players to transfer their Pokémon via the Transfer Pak, a feature that I used daily.

Pokémon Gold and Pokémon Silver

Release Date: October 15, 2000

Platform: Game Boy Color

The second generation of Pokémon games were easily my favorite, even to this day! Not as big of a success as Pokémon Red & Blue, Pokémon G/S managed to sell over 15 million copies worldwide. Besides being the first Pokémon games in full color, many unique concepts were introduced that play a huge role in the Pokémon games even to this day. I loved how the game would reflect what time it was where you were – if it was nighttime at your house, it would be pitch black in the game; Pokémon also varied in rarity depending on the time of day. Pokémon Gold & Silver also introduced 100 new Pokémon and unlike some of the Pokémon today, I loved all of them, especially Cyndaquil. The reason why a lot of players including myself love this game the most is because after you beat the game, you were able to travel back to Kanto and battle the gym leaders. It was a pleasant surprise, which is why I wish Nintendo would release an updated version of Pokémon Gold & Silver for the Nintendo DS.

Pokémon Stadium 2

Release Date: March 26, 2001

Platform: Nintendo 64

Similar to its sequel, Pokémon Stadium 2 allowed players to battle it out in 3D, but this time using their Pokémon from Pokémon Gold & Silver. This was the first Pokémon game I wasn't impressed with because it was almost identical to its predecessor, except with more Pokémon and different mini-games. However, I did enjoy being able to decorate my in-game room and the mini-games as always were amazing – I especially loved Chansey's Egg Emergency. Sadly, this would be the last appearance of Pokémon mini-games as they've been left out of subsequent Pokémon games. The Pokémon quizzes were also fun since you could test your Pokémon knowledge with up to four of your friends at once. It was the perfect party game!

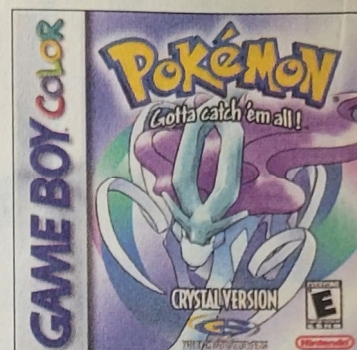

Pokémon Crystal

Release Date: July 30, 2001

Platform: Game Boy Color

Selling 3.75 million copies in the US and Japan alone, Pokémon Crystal was even better than Pokémon Gold & Silver since it still allowed you to travel back to Kanto and featured even more neat concepts. My sisters especially loved the fact that for the first time ever, you could make the protagonist a girl. I was engrossed by the storyline in this game; instead of being solely focused on Ho-oh and Lugia, Suicune played a bigger role in the adventure. Suicune has always been one of my favorites since it's fast and learns the devastating Mirror Coat attack, an attack I've won many battles with. The thing that disappointed me the most though was the removal of Celebi from the English version. I was hoping it would be added back in for Pokémon Crystal, but was disheartened when it wasn't. The Battle Tower was also a welcomed addition, since it added even more longevity to an already long game.

Pokémon Ruby and Pokémon Sapphire

Release Date: March 17, 2003

Platform: Game Boy Advance

After waiting nearly two years, I was very anxious to play Pokémon Ruby & Sapphire and it didn't disappoint. Selling over 13 million copies worldwide, it was the best selling Game Boy Advance game of all time! When I saw the graphics for the first time, I was in awe at how much they had progressed in such a short time. The world was now in pseudo-3D as you could even see the reflection of your character in the water. My favorite addition was Pokémon abilities, which added a whole new level of strategy and realism to the games. However, the bigger story is what was left out of this game. Unlike the past generation, Pokémon from the past two generations couldn't be transferred to this game; trainers had to start fresh. If that wasn't bad enough, many features like night and day had been downgraded or eliminated completely.

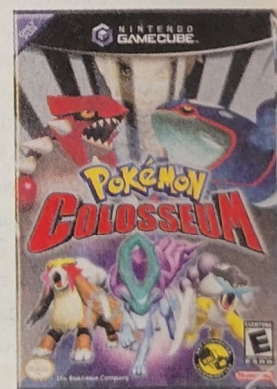

Pokémon Colosseum

Release Date: March 22, 2004

Platform: GameCube

Pokémon fans had been asking for a Pokémon RPG in 3D for over five years and with the release of Pokémon Colosseum they finally got it... well, sort of. Selling 1.15 million copies, Pokémon Colosseum wasn't the game I had hoped. If you're thinking about buying it to play on the Nintendo Wii, don't bother because it's not worth it. I enjoyed Pokémon Colosseum at first until I realized how tedious purifying a Pokémon could be. The storyline was darker, which I enjoyed, but you couldn't travel between towns, so the game was very limited in that regard. I was also very disappointed that there were no mini-games included, since they were always my favorite in the past two Pokémon Stadium games. Overall this was a very disappointing title that could and should have been a lot better.

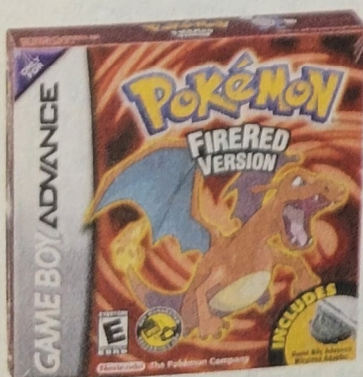

Pokémon FireRed and Pokémon LeafGreen

Release Date: September 9, 2004

Platform: Game Boy Advance

Selling over 10 million copies worldwide, Pokémon FireRed & LeafGreen were remakes of the games that made Pokémon a worldwide success: Pokémon Red & Blue. I enjoyed the games a lot because it was amazing to see how much better they looked in full color graphics. It was also a treat to have the gameplay elements, like Pokémon abilities and Pokémon natures, combined with FireRed & LeafGreen. It would have been nice to be able to obtain all of the starter Pokémon like Pokémon Yellow, but I guess that's asking for too much. My favorite addition was the Sevii Islands, which extended the game far beyond the credits, even allowing trainers to teach their Pokémon exclusive attacks via the resident Move Tutors. The GBA Wireless Adapter, which was included with each game, was pretty neat since I no longer needed a Game Link Cable to battle my friends.

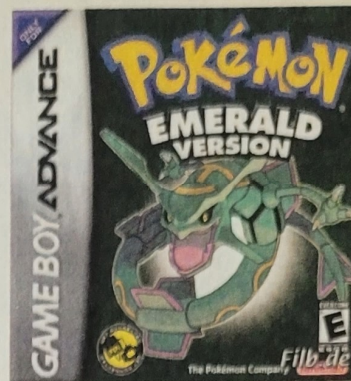

Pokémon Emerald

Release Date: May 1, 2005

Platform: Game Boy Advance

Selling 6.32 million copies, Pokémon Emerald was the third best selling game on the Game Boy Advance and the second best selling game that year in North America. I liked Pokémon Emerald better than Ruby & Sapphire because of the Battle Frontier. The Battle Frontier was great because it allowed you to battle powerful trainers besides the Elite Four. The only knock against it was that your Pokémon couldn't gain experience from it, but the prizes you receive for winning more than made up for it. It was also awesome that you could obtain one of the Johto starters for completing the Pokédex – I chose Cyndaquil. Lastly, I especially liked the emphasis on double battles since they are my favorite form of battling.

Pokémon XD: Gale of Darkness

Release Date: October 3, 2005

Platform: GameCube

Selling 1.25 million copies, Pokémon XD was the sequel to Pokémon Colosseum. Even though XD used the same graphics and gameplay as Colosseum, I enjoyed it more because it resembled the Game Boy games more. For example, instead of having to go to the Pokémon Center to save, you could save anywhere from the menu, a welcomed addition. Also, purifying Pokémon was a lot easier and took less time. Lastly, twice as many of the Pokémon were available, which really helped me complete my Pokédex in Pokémon Emerald. This was by far the best Pokémon game to not appear on a handheld console.

Pokémon Diamond and Pokémon Pearl

Release Date: April 22, 2007

Platform: Nintendo DS

Selling over 1.5 million copies in the first week alone, Pokémon Diamond & Pearl had the best opening week for any game in Pokémon history. With sales of over 12 million, this was easily my second favorite Pokémon game of all-time – finally, I was able to trade and battle my friends online! If that wasn't good enough, many of the features from Pokémon Gold & Silver, like night and day, had returned. The best part was that I could transfer my Pokémon from the Game Boy Advance games. The only disappointing part is that the Battle Frontier was severely lacking.

Pokémon Battle Revolution

Release Date: June 25, 2007

Platform: Nintendo Wii

Pokémon Battle Revolution (PBR) is easily one of the biggest failures in Pokémon gaming history. Not even breaking the one million units sold mark, this game is a sequel to the Pokémon Stadium games, except none of the extra features like mini-games are included. Basically, this game is a standalone battle engine. The only redeeming quality is that you can battle random players online – a feature that should have been included in Diamond & Pearl. Overall, PBR is a very disappointing first showing for Pokémon on the Wii.

So there you have it, the history of Pokémon RPGs over the past decade. It's amazing how far Pokémon has come from the Game Boy days in black and white to today in pristine color on the Nintendo DS. With a sequel to Pokémon Diamond & Pearl in the works, it's likely that you'll be catching 'em all 10 years from now too! ♦

TOUGH TRIVIA

By Alex Lucard

WE'VE GOT THE QUESTIONS, BUT DO YOU HAVE THE ANSWERS?

By now you should know the routine. Here come 10 questions!

1. If you put a male Ponyta and a female Flaaffy into a Pokémon day care center, what kind of egg would come from this pairing?

2. What Pokémon game can you currently buy from the Nintendo Wii Virtual Console?

3. What real life animal inspired the Pokémon Kecleon?

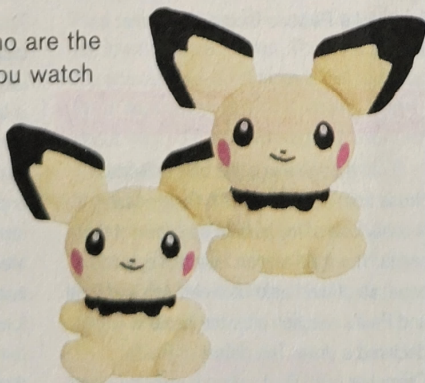

4. Why was the episode "Electric Soldier Porygon" banned in the United States?

5. In Pokémon Channel, who are the two stars of the cartoon you watch with Pikachu?

6. What does an Iapapa Berry do?

7. What Pokémon does Ash's mom have?

8. True or False: In the anime series, Ash had a Ghost Type Pokémon on his team for a while.

9. Instead of a crab shell, what does a Parasect have for its armored exoskeleton?

10. What item does a Kadabra always carry with it?

EXTRA CREDIT:

What color is a SHINY Wooper?

1. A Mareep. 2. Pokémon Snap. 3. The chameleon. 4. It was believed to cause seizures. 5. The Pichu Bros. 6. Restores health, but it may also cause confusion. 7. A Mr. Mime. 8. True. For two episodes, Ash had a Haunter. 9. A mushroom. 10. A spoon. EXTRA CREDIT: Pink!

THE TOP POKÉMON MOMENTS

MY TOP 10 FAVORITE POKÉMON EPISODES

By Sean Cooper

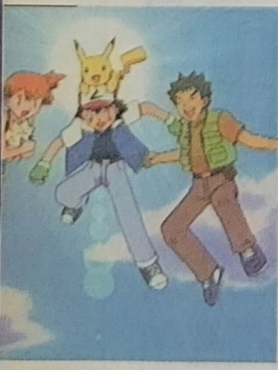

With over 500 episodes, it was no easy task to choose my Top 10 favorite episodes from the Pokémon anime. That being said, I tried my best to narrow down the list out of a handful of episodes that I really enjoy. Read on to find out which episodes I like the best!

#1 Pokémon I Choose You!

This is easily the best Pokémon episode I have ever seen. Even to this day I remember exactly what happens. Ash, a young boy who oversleeps on his first day as a Pokémon trainer, is stuck with a disobedient Pokémon named Pikachu. It is hilarious how the electric mouse keeps shocking Ash, Professor Oak and even the whole town! The best scene and probably the most touching moment in the series is when Pikachu is shocking the attacking Spearow in order to protect Ash – it almost brought a tear to my eye. This episode also marks the beginning of the relationship between Ash and Misty. I enjoy how at first they dislike each other, but eventually Misty stays around, not caring about her destroyed bike anymore. To top it all off, I love the teaser of the mysterious legendary bird Pokémon flying over the sunset – at that time I had no idea it was Ho-oh. In my honest opinion, this is simply the best episode ever released!

#2 Electric Shock Showdown

Another Pikachu and Ash-focused episode, this episode is memorable because it's the first crushing defeat for Ash and Pikachu. When Pikachu refuses to take the Evolution Stone from Nurse Joy, I learned a lifelong lesson that it's not always right to take the easy way in life. Besides the serious moments, I find it hilarious that Team Rocket keeps appearing in weird costumes to cheer Ash and Pikachu on. Another lesson this episode taught me was about respect – when Pikachu finally defeats Raichu, Lt. Surge stops calling Ash names because he has gained his respect. Speaking of the battle, it is one of the best battles of the series because Pikachu is faced with the ultimate opponent – the evolved form of itself in Raichu – and manages to come out victorious. In a way, this fight is like Pikachu facing off against its mentor.

#3 When Pokémon Worlds Collide!

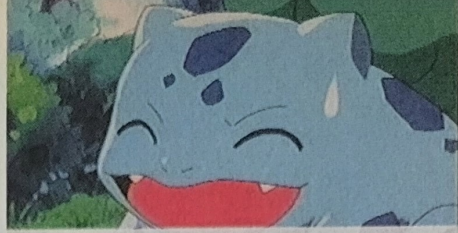

Even though this is the only episode I chose from the Diamond & Pearl season, it is easily one of my favorite episodes of the series. The main reason I like this episode is because of the battle between Ash and Paul and Paul's reaction after the battle is declared a draw. The defeat of Paul's Chimchar (with Paul calling it useless) plants the seed of his eventual abandonment of the Pokémon in the near future. Speaking of Paul, his reaction after the battle is priceless – instead of calling Ash a loser like Gary would, he instead insults his own Pokémon by calling them pathetic; he even releases one! Paul's ruthlessness is why he is one of my favorite characters of the series. I look forward to the building tension between Ash and Paul in the upcoming episodes. I also like the fact that this episode concludes a three-episode story arc. In the future, I hope the writers do more episodes like this because there is no excuse with 52 episodes in a season.

#4 Go West Young Meowth

This episode seems like it would have been perfect for the Pokémon Chronicles TV series. So why do I love this episode so much? I love it because unlike most TV series where the history of the characters is left unexplained and up to the imagination of the viewers, we actually get to find out how Meowth learns to speak. The story is perfect – in order to win over the love of his life, another Meowth named Meowsie, Meowth learns to speak "human talk." The ending of the episode is touching and funny at the same time; as Meowth goes toe-to-toe with a Persian, Meowsie protects the Persian because she likes the Persian better than Meowth. If that isn't bad enough, she still calls Meowth a freak! Even though there are some storyline issues with the Team Rocket episodes of Pokémon Chronicles, I still like this touching episode.

©2007 Pokémon. ©1995-2007 Nintendo, Creatures, GAME FREAK, TV Tokyo, Shogro, JR Kikaku. Pokémon Properties are trademarks of Nintendo.

#5 A Poached Ego!

Another Team Rocket-focused episode, I like this episode because it shows the good side of Team Rocket for once. I was getting bored of the same battles between Ash and Team Rocket, so I'm glad that the writers came up with an excuse to write out Team Rocket's Pokémon. I think this episode is very strange because aside from the episode opening and ending with Ash, he isn't seen for the rest of the episode. One of the darker moments in the series is when Meowth discovers the caged Ekans and Koffing – I felt really sorry for the pain they were in. When Team Rocket releases their Pokémon Arbok and Weezing in order to protect the Ekans and Koffing from the Pokémon poacher, it shows that they aren't completely bad – they still have good hearts buried deep down. I always chuckle when Ash finds the traps from Team Rocket and blames it on them, when it was really Team Rocket who saved the day – a funny moment to end an amazing episode!

#6 Challenge of the Samurai

I love this episode because it has the best battle scene of all time – the dreaded Metapod vs. Metapod showdown! You know how a lot of trainers claim Magikarp is the weakest Pokémon of all? Well I think Metapod is intent on competing for the title of weakest. The best part about the so-called battle is that both Ash and the samurai trainer keep telling their Metapod to use the move Harden over and over again, but they never attack since the Pokémon don't know any attacks. What makes it even funnier is that Misty changes into her bathing suit and starts sun tanning because she's so bored – this has to be one of the funniest moments in the series! The storyline about Ash abandoning Metapod is also well done – I like how Ash rescues Metapod at the end and it evolves into a Butterfree. Episodes like this are why I like the first season episodes better than the current ones.

#7 Beauty and the Beach

I'm sure a lot of fans are wondering why I'm including the most famous banned episode in the series even though all of the "good parts" have been cut out. Well the reason is because I remember reading about the episode for years wondering if it would ever be dubbed until finally it aired exclusively as a lost episode in the US. Even though it's a filler episode, it's a really awesome episode! From Ash stealing and destroying a boat to Meowth sabotaging the restaurant Ash and his friends work at to repay the boat owner, this episode has everything! I'll admit that I'm disappointed that the scene with James posing as a woman was cut out, but the swimsuit competition is good nonetheless. I laugh at the end because the trophy Ash's mom received is changed to a reward to Ash for rescuing the town instead of for her winning the beauty contest. At least the joke at the end of the following episode Tentacool & Tentacruel now makes sense since we now know there are two old hags.

#8 A Cacturne for the Worse

This episode introduces my favorite recurring character throughout the entire series: Harley. Like James, Harley has a rather flamboyant personality, but that's not really the reason why I like him. The main reason I like Harley is because he gets offended so easily – just because May calls his Cacturne scary, he adds her to his notebook as if they are mortal enemies! Harley is also probably the most ruthless rival besides Paul – he cheats in Pokémon Contests on the level of Team Rocket. The best part of the episode is when Harley plays the recording of Max telling an embarrassing story about May – I burst out laughing every time! It's a shame that Harley doesn't win the contest, but I guess the writers wanted to build up his hatred for May, which I have no problem with. Basically, every episode Harley appears in I like, but this one stands out, as it's his first.

#9 Rage of Innocence

I really like this episode and wish Pokémon would do more episodes like this. Basically, this is the second part of a two-episode story arc involving Team Rocket members (besides Jessie and James) and a Red Gyarados. Since the Johto season is, in my opinion, terribly boring, it's nice to get an episode like this once in a while. It is also nice to see Lance – I was really disappointed in the first season when we didn't even get to see Ash battle Lance at the Pokémon League. The whole Pokémon G-Men story is entertaining as well – it's a shame there wasn't a video game made out of it. I also like it how, for once in the series, I actually thought Team Rocket had a legitimate chance of winning instead of being nothing more than comic relief. It would've been nice to see a follow-up storyline involving Team Rocket, but Lance appears again in the Hoenn region in another two-episode story arc, so I can't complain. This is definitely an episode you can't miss in the long and often boring Johto season.

#10 Hocus Pokémon

How could I forget the infamous "Ashachu" episode? Don't know what I'm talking about? Essentially, Ash and crew run into a Pokémon magician who hasn't exactly mastered spell casting yet. After gathering all of the items to cast a spell, the magician accidentally turns Ash into a Pikachu – that moment alone made this episode worthwhile! I know Pokémon isn't all about magic and secret powers, but I don't mind this story since it is so entertaining. It's a shame Ash is only a Pikachu until the end of the episode, because they could have had him stuck as a Pikachu for at least a few more episodes. I guess I like this story a lot because it inadvertently foreshadows Pokémon Mystery Dungeon with a human being turned into a Pokémon. The only thing I find annoying is the magician's strong accent, but it is worth hearing it to see Ash as a Pikachu.

So there you have it, my picks for the top 10 Pokémon episodes. Everyone has their own opinion, so if you'd like to share your Top 10 favorite episodes of Pokémon, please be sure to visit the Beckett Pokémon Forums (<http://www.beckett.com/Pokemonforum/>) and give us your thoughts. With the Diamond & Pearl season off to a great start, I'm sure there will be some more incredible episodes to come. Stay tuned! ♦

Secrets of Evolution:

Secret Wonders Part 3

THE LAST OF THE SECRETS REVEALED!

By Michael Lucas

Welcome back TCG fans to Part 3 of the Secret Wonders set review! This will be our last look at Secret Wonders before moving on to the next set – there are still a few diamonds in the rough I haven't reviewed yet. Let's look at the last handful of powerful Pokémon this set has!

Venusaur Lv. 51 (#20/132) – Sweet scent

Venusaur, as far as Pokémon cards go, tends to be able to either heal, transfer energy or inflict status effects. This one's got two of those three covered! Miracle Aroma allows one of three status effects to be inflicted to the defending Pokémon on a successful coin flip: Poison for guaranteed damage, Burn for possible double damage in-between turns, or Sleep for a chance that the opponent won't be able to act next turn. Beyond that, Venusaur will be doing 60 per turn with Giant Bloom; three energy doing 60 damage, as well as potentially healing up to 40 damage with each attack, is, in my opinion, an impressive move to have in your corner. Unless an opponent can knock out Venusaur in one shot, they'll probably have quite a lot of trouble getting rid of it. Venusaur would be a great addition to any grass deck!

Card Price
Range:
3.00 - 6.00

Jumpluff Lv. 42 (#11/132) – Hit or miss

Jumpluff revives an idea from the old days of the Baby Pokémon, which required you to get through a coin flip in order to attack. Cotton Spore gives your opponent a 50/50 shot at getting any damage through, though Special Conditions can still get through. Its free retreat makes that far less of a problem than normal, leaving it free to switch out for another Pokémon (maybe another Jumpluff?) to continue the attack. Cottonweed Punch only does an average of 30 damage for two energy, but it can be directed at any of your opponent's Pokémon, enabling you to pick off weaklings. If you have a lucky coin, one that tends to flip heads a lot, this might let you take a tournament by storm!

Card Price
Range:
3.00 - 5.00

Card Price
Range:
3.00 - 6.00

Ho-Oh Lv. 45 (#10/132) – Arising from the ashes

If Jumpluff possibly dodging damage is good, then Ho-Oh's power is amazing! Phoenix Turn gives a player a 50/50 shot of not only keeping Ho-Oh around, plus all energy attached, but also healing all Special Conditions and damage in one fell swoop! The opponent would still take a prize card, but a Ho-Oh dealing 80 damage a turn is NOT something your opponent will want to have to deal with more than once. That 90 HP is a bit low, and the double water weakness means you might be flipping for it every turn against a water deck, but other than that, it can be a great asset to a multi-energy deck. Just like Jumpluff, if you have that lucky coin flipping in your favor, give it a shot!

Card Price
Range:
.20 - .50

Trainer Corner: Pluspower (#121/132)

Yep, it's back again. Pluspower can make or break games – knocking out your opponent's big attacker, rather than leaving them with 10 HP, can be the difference between taking your last prize and watching your opponent grab theirs and emerge victorious. In addition, more than one can give you a prize card and a knockout your opponent never saw coming. If you seem to come up just short on knockouts, try a few of these!

That's it for Secret Wonders, Trainers! Next month, I'll be back with an all new set and reviewing even more powerful Pokémon and Trainer cards for your decks! Until next time, play hard and play fair! ♦

Attach PlusPower to 1 of your Pokémon.
Discard this card at the end of your turn.

If the Pokémon PlusPower is attached to attacks, the attack does 10 more damage to the Active Pokémon (before applying Weakness and Resistance).

DAWN COMPETES IN HER

WILL THE FIRST TIME BE THE CHARM?

This month I'm trying something different with the episode reviews – from now on instead of simply giving episode summaries, I'll dedicate this section to my personal thoughts on the episodes at hand.

With the Diamond & Pearl season well underway, what exciting adventures are in store for our heroes? Keep reading to find out!

Episode #473: Like it or Lup it!

Events: Dawn and Golduck battle Team Rocket and Ludicolo.

Review: After the first few episodes of the season were so exciting, it's a big letdown that we're at a filler episode already. This episode is reminiscent of the Johto seasons in terms of the lack of anything important happening. Simply put, this episode is boring – it isn't a big deal if you missed it. We've seen the story a million times where Ash and crew side with one Pokémon and Team Rocket sides with another, until the Pokémon supporting Team Rocket realizes it's being used as a pawn and turns on them. The only good thing I can say about this episode is that it was nice to see the return of Meowth's boss fantasies with Giovanni – I still enjoy them even after all of these years. Overall, if you've got homework or there's something else on TV, I recommend that you skip this episode unless you're the type who needs to see every single episode.

Rating: 1 out of 5 stars

Episode #474: Gymbaliar!

Events: Brock makes his first Sinnoh capture by snagging Croagunk.

Review: This episode is a lot better than its predecessor and not just because Brock captures a new Pokémon in Croagunk – it's Croagunk's character that really shines. Croagunk is hilarious in many instances; from giving James a Poison Sting when he calls it boring to dragging Brock off by the ear à la Misty, this is one Pokémon you don't want to mess with! The plot for this episode is ok, but it reminds me too much of the Breeding Center scam pulled by Butch and Cassidy. Team Rocket capturing Pikachu is expected and anyone who has been watching the show for at least a season knows Ash will always get the electric mouse back, so the ending is pretty cookie cutter in that regard. However, despite that I still find this episode hilarious and I can't wait for Croagunk to continue to provide comic relief in the coming episodes.

Rating: 4 out of 5 stars

Episode #475: Setting the World on its Buneary!

Events: Dawn captures her first Pokémon in Buneary.

Review: This is another entertaining episode, although not as good as the previous one. Croagunk yet again plays comic relief, as it punches Brock in the stomach when he becomes too caught up with Officer Jenny. The main story is the crush a wild Buneary has for Pikachu – if you're into Pokémon love, you'll adore this cute episode! From winking at Pikachu, to hiding its face in its fur, Buneary is simply adorable. The only sad part is that if you're looking forward to more development in the

FIRST SUPER CONTEST

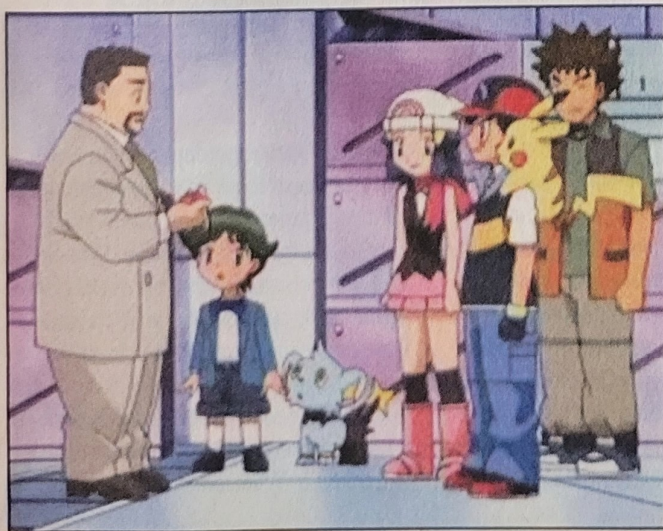

Pikachu and Buneary relationship, don't get your hopes up – it's pretty much dropped after this episode, which is a real shame. The capture of Pikachu and Buneary by Team Rocket and Dawn capturing Buneary is nothing we haven't seen before, but they are entertaining nonetheless. In the end, this is a decent Pokémon episode if you like Pokémon love.

Rating: 3 out of 5 stars

Episode #476: Not on MY Watch Ya Don't!

Events: Dawn receives the Pokétech.

Review: This episode reminds me of the GS Ball back from the Johto seasons because even though it's cool to have an episode based on an item from the games, the Pokétech is seemingly never mentioned again. Even with its limited appearance, it is pretty cool how the Happiness application is used to see how much Pikachu likes Ash as a trainer. It is also entertaining to see Team Rocket disguised as clowns since it's similar to the clowns you have to find in order to receive the Pokétech in the Pokémon Diamond & Pearl games. Even though it is brief, it's pretty neat to see Marina, the female protagonist from Pokémon Crystal, make an appearance on the cover of a magazine. I personally think that the plot is fairly original with Team Rocket hypnotizing trainers with fake Pokétech items in order to get their Pokémon. Of course the ending is predictable with Team Rocket blasting off again, but if you like strange plot twists, be sure to watch this episode.

Rating: 3 out of 5 stars

Episode #477: Mounting a Coordinator Assault!

Events: Dawn competes in her first Super Contest.

Review: Besides the costumes, I find it rather disappointing how the anime interpreted Pokémon Contests in Hoenn and Super Contests in Sinnoh – it would've been nice to see a few more differences. Nonetheless, it is nice to see Ash compete in a Pokémon Contest for once – it reminds me of when Brock battled May in a Pokémon Contest back in Hoenn. In this episode we are introduced to Dawn's first rival, Zoey, who unlike past rivals is genuinely nice and helpful towards Dawn. I'm ok with that, as long as Team Rocket or another rival like Harley is introduced to cause grief for the two female coordinators. If you plan to watch the next episode, you definitely have to see this one since you're left with a cliffhanger on whether Ash, Dawn, Zoey and Jessie advance to the second round. Overall, it is an exciting episode that you'll especially enjoy if you're into Pokémon Contests like me! ♦

Rating: 3 out of 5 stars

Will Dawn, Ash, Zoey and Jessie make it to the next round of the Super Contest? Check back next month to find out!

By now, you have probably seen some of the Groundbreakers expansion set hitting stores. However, there are three figures from Next Quest that are very important

WEEDLE

First up is Weedle. At first, Weedle doesn't look like much, but a careful observation of its dial shows that if you play it cleverly, it can be one of the most annoying Pokémon in the game. Weedle only has a single Move Point. This, of course, means you can't use it on the first turn. I think it's also a huge detraction to the piece because most Pokémon with only 1 MP are generally quite powerful and are the backbone of your team. Weedle? Well... it not, as it's can only do 10 damage at best, meaning that in a straight up fight, any other Pokémon can knock it out.

So what makes Weedle even worth putting on the board? I think it's simple: two-thirds of Weedle's dial is a purple

THIS MONTH, I'M COMPARING THREE MORE POKÉMON FAVORITES FROM THE NEXT QUEST CORE SERIES

By Alex Lucard

attack. As players of the TFG know by know, purple attacks take precedent over the white damage-based attacks, meaning Weedle has a good chance of surviving, no matter what.

Weedle's purple attack is called Poison Sting. Poison Sting does no damage, but it automatically gives the opposing Pokémon the Poison status. A Pokémon that is poisoned does 20 less damage than normal. This means if an attack does 40 damage, it drops to 20. If it does 20 or 10 damage, the move now does no damage at all. This not only gives Weedle a fighting chance against lower-tier Pokémon, but more importantly, it weakens your opponent's more powerful Pokémon so that they are easier prey for Pokémon like Charizard or Kyogre. Watching a opponent's Feraligatr's Hydro Pump drop from 120 damage to 100 damage might not seem like a lot, but it can be amazingly effective if you plan your team right.

The other one-third of Weedle's dial is the 10 damage Tackle move that it has. Although it's only helpful in rare situations, I think it's better than having a miss on your dial.

I think Weedle is best played defensively. It can't move very far, so if you do decide to field one, I would recommend keeping it close to your own goal along with a powerful Pokémon. Weedle can poison the opponent, and then your bigger gun can come in and knock it out. This doesn't mean you'll be playing the game more defensively than a lot of other players, but this strategy can be helpful, especially when you're first learning the ropes of the game.

SALAMENCE

I was always surprised Salamence was in the game, what with Charizard filling the Western-looking-dragon role in this core set. Salamence is a decent Pokémon for TFG play, but it really is overshadowed by the aforementioned popular Fire Pokémon.

The vast majority of Salamence's dial is taken up by its Dragonbreath Move. Dragonbreath is a white colored attack, and it does 70 damage, which is a good amount indeed. 70 damage can take out most Pokémon with two or three Move Points, and it can hold up against the more powerful Pokémon who have just one move point. The problem is that most one Move Point Pokémon have at least one attack that does at least 90. As Salamence itself is a one Move Point Pokémon, this makes it the weakest of that grouping. Even some Pokémon with two Move Points like Pikachu and Zangoose have attacks that can knock out Salamence. This is a pretty disappointing realization, especially for North American fans of the game as Salamence is one of the more common "hidden" figures in the booster packs. In the rest of the world, he's a little bit harder to come by.

Salamence does have a purple spot on his dial that takes up about twenty percent of it. Purple moves take precedent over any other moves in the game, but Salamence's move is Fly Away. All it does is cause Salamence to jump over the opposing

The Pokémon Trading Figure Game

Pokémon, if it can. This move would be great if it was on a Pokémon with two or three Move Points, but on a Pokémon with only one, it's rather useless. This is yet another way Salamence proves to be the weakest heavy hitter in the game.

Finally, Salamence has a small Miss area on its dial. It may be small, but it's definitely the third strike against Salamence as a playable Pokémon, and you know what that means.

In all, Salamence is probably the most disappointing piece I found in the entire Next Quest set. It didn't convert very well from Pokémon Ruby/Sapphire to the figure game, and I can't think of any case where I'd prefer to use Salamence in a game over your Starter powerhouse of Feraligatr or Charizard. Unless you only have six figures and Salamence is one of them, keep it for the sake of catching them all, but not for playing.

MACHOP

Machop is similar to how you would use it in the video games. It's just a straight up fighter with no fancy tricks or strategies. It's a decent attacker/blocker and its dial is straightforward.

Machop has two Move Points, which means you can use it on your first turn. Although not as fast as a Speedster, it does play a similar role. It's a little bit slower, but its attack and defensive capabilities make up for it. Consider Machop as a Speedster counter option.

A little over half of Machop's dial is a white attack. This attack, Focus Punch, does 40 damage and is great for taking out the Speedster Pokémon your opponent will no doubt field. Be careful putting Machop up against other Pokémon with two Move Points, or especially those with only one, as those Pokémon tend to have a much higher attack than Machop, and you'll have to dramatically change your strategy for how to use this Pokémon.

About thirty percent of Machop's dial is a blue Dodge move. Remember that blue areas on a dial trump everything else. It's this Dodge that lets Machop go up against even the most powerful Pokémon figures. Remember, you can't use Machop as a straight up Knock Out piece against the heavy hitters. Instead, when facing Pokémon like Groudon or Ho-Oh, you're going to have to hope Dodge comes up often. This will keep Machop alive in the game, and also block your opponent's route to your goal. With a little luck, you'll be able to use Machop as a roadblock until one of your bigger, slower pieces can get up to it. I can't emphasize how important it is to have at least one Pokémon on your TFG with a large Dodge spot on its dial. I find stonewalling your opponent to be one of the best (and most annoying) tactics you can pull off in the game.

Finally, there are two small orange Miss spaces on Machop's dial; one for each side of its Dodge. This means that if it's too close to the line, a Judge's call can be requested, and Machop's Dodge can become a Miss and thus a Knock Out. Of course, the reverse is true too. Just keep an eye on this Achilles' heel.

I'll be back next month with three more figures from the world of Pokémon TFG to examine. See you then! ♦

TOP 50 POKÉMO

Here's a countdown to the 50 most popular Pokémon chosen by Pokémon fans

By Alex Lucard

For the 100th issue of this magazine, we decided to do something special. We polled random Pokémon fans from a variety of sources, ranging from Pokémon fan sites to pop culture websites like Newsarama and Inside Pulse where more casual fans could be found. In the end we had a clear idea of who your favorite Pokémon are from across the four generations released so far.

Interesting notes:

1) Neither Pikachu nor Mudkip came in first. These two are generally considered the most popular Pokémon in North America, yet neither took first place.

2) Nearly all of the Top 25 are comprised of the original 151 Pokémon found in Red/Blue/Green/Yellow. 38 of the Pokémon in the Top 50 come from the original black and white Game Boy game. Is it because these are the most well known, or was the first generation simply the best set of Pokémon? That's a question you'll have to decide for yourself.

3) Only a single vote separated the #1 and #2 most popular Pokémon.

Now, let's go on with the countdown. We'll be using the National Pokédex from Diamond/Pearl for numbering purposes.

#50 Rotom

Pokédex Number: 479

Type: Electric/Ghost

First Appeared in: Pokémon Diamond/Pearl

Rotom became quite popular after Gabe from the web-comic Penny Arcade outed him as his favorite Pokémon, so it is no surprise it makes the list. There is only a single Rotom in either Diamond or Pearl, and it can only be found after you beat the game. Go back to the Old Chateau at Night and watch the TV. Rotom will then appear and you'll have this one chance to catch it.

#49 Skuntank

Pokédex Number: 435

Type: Dark/Poison

First Appeared in: Pokémon Diamond

Skuntank is very popular on the player vs. player scene due to the fact it is only weak to Ground attacks and it has high stats all around. Pearl players will need to find a friend with Diamond to trade with if they want to have a Skuntank of their own.

#48 Mudkip

Pokédex Number: 258

Type: Water

First Appeared in: Pokémon Ruby/Sapphire

Mudkip is a popular Internet meme, but he only ranked #48 in this poll. Mudkip is one of the three starters you can choose from in Ruby/Sapphire, and its final evolved form of Swampert is the best overall starter Pokémon from all four generations of the game. Mudkip is based on the real life animal known as the mudskipper.

N COUNTDOWN

#47 Mew

Pokédex Number: 151

Type: Psychic

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Mew was the first Pokémon that you could only get by attending a special Pokémon related event. It is the only Pokémon that can learn every single TM, no matter which Pokémon game you put it into. It is also the only Pokémon besides Ditto (who did not make the countdown) who can naturally learn the move Transform.

#44 Starmie

Pokédex Number: 121

Type: Water/Psychic

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Starmie has always been a popular Pokémon. Water and Psychic are two of the most popular Pokémon types, and to have both in the same Pokémon leaves room for other types to be added to a well-rounded team. Starmie can not only use Water and Psychic's most powerful attacks, but in its un-evolved form of Staryu, it can also learn Recover, a move that lets a Pokémon regain half of its maximum hit points.

#46 Wigglytuff

Pokédex Number: 40

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Wigglytuff is the evolved form of Jigglypuff. In order to evolve Jigglypuff, you need to touch Wigglytuff with a moon stone. Wigglytuff is the leader of the Pokémon Guild in Pokémon Mystery Dungeon 2, which is currently out in Japan only.

#43 Crobat

Pokédex Number: 169

Type: Flying/Poison

First Appeared in: Pokémon Silver/Gold

Crobat is the fastest Pokémon in the game and is unaffected by Flinch thanks to its Pokémon ability Inner Focus. A Golbat will only evolve into a Crobat if you treat it with a lot of love and kindness. In the anime, Brock's Zubat that he caught in the very first season of Pokémon eventually evolved into a Crobat.

#45 Wartortle

Pokédex Number: 8

Type: Water

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Wartortle is the middle evolution between Squirtle and Blastoise. The Diamond/Pearl Pokédex describes it as having a furry tail. Although Ash Ketchum had a Squirtle in the anime series, it never evolved into a Wartortle. If you're looking to add Wartortle to your DS Pokémon games, you'll have to transfer it via the Pal Park.

#42 Vulpix

Pokédex Number: 37

Type: Fire

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Vulpix became popular because it had a large role in the early episodes of Pokémon as one of Brock's Pokémon. Vulpix is one of the few Fire Pokémon in the game that is predominantly female when found in the wild. It evolves into Ninetales with the help of a Fire Stone.

#41 Ninetales

Pokédex Number: 38

Type: Fire

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

The two forms of Ninetales are back to back on the countdown. Ninetales is a popular Fire type Pokémon to use in the game because it is one of the fastest Pokémon in the game, it has the Flash Fire ability and it can learn Confuse Ray, which is a Ghost type attack that has a 100% chance to confuse your opponent's Pokémon. Long time readers will recall Ninetales is based on the Japanese legend of the kitsune.

#40 Raticate

Pokédex Number: 20

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Raticate is one of the best Pokémon you can get in the early stages of the game. It's popular for its two signature attacks, Hyper Fang and Super Fang, both of which do an amazing amount of damage. If raised properly, and given TM's, Raticate can even be a player in the late game or against other trainers in competitions.

#39 Feraligatr

Pokédex Number: 160

Type: Water

First Appeared in: Pokémon Gold/Silver

Feraligatr is the only starter from Gold/Silver to make the list. It is the evolved form of Totodile. In the anime, Ash had a Totodile (whose voice sounded like Donald Duck's) but it never evolved into Feraligatr. The only way you can currently port a Feraligatr to your DS games is by getting one as a Totodile in Emerald as a prize for completing your Hoenn Pokédex or by beating Mt. Battle in Pokémon XD.

#38 Blaziken

Pokédex Number: 257

Type: Fire/Fighting

First Appeared in: Pokémon Ruby/Sapphire

Only two Pokémon from R/S made the list, and this is the first. Blaziken is the final evolved form of the R/S starter, Torchic. It is one of two starters whose final form is a dual Fire/Fighting type, with the other being Chimchar. During the R/S seasons of Pokémon, May had a Blaziken as her main Pokémon that she raised all the way from a Torchic.

#37 Marowak

Pokédex Number: 105

Type: Ground

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Green/Blue

In the original game, Marowak was the only ghost Pokémon that did not have a Ghost type attached to it. The spirit of a Marowak, along with Gastlys and Haunters, guarded Lavender Tower and the baby Cubone inside from Team Rocket. In the Silver/Gold era of Pokémon, Marowak was widely considered the best Ground Pokémon in the game.

#36 Hitmonchan

Pokédex Number: 107

Type: Fighting

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Green/Blue

Hitmonchan has always been the most popular Fighting type Pokémon, even if he was never very good in the video game. With the restructuring of physical and special moves in D/P, Hitmonchan is now extremely powerful. Hitmonchan's best known appearance in the anime came from in an episode called "The Punchy Pokémon."

Hitmonchan was the favored Pokémon to win a Fighting Pokémon tournament, but in the end, it was Ash's Primeape that won.

#35 Togepi

Pokédex Number: 175

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: The Pokémon Anime

Togepi was the first Pokémon to debut outside of one of the video games. Ash, Brock and Misty found Togepi in its egg form, and when it hatched, they had a battle to see who would keep Togepi. Misty won that battle, and she carried Togepi with her everywhere until it finally evolved into a Togetic. Misty then released it back into the wild.

#34 Tyranitar

Pokédex Number: 248

Type: Dark/Rock

First Appeared in: Pokémon Gold/Silver

Tyranitar was the Pokémon of Pokémon during the second generation. It was one of the most powerful Pokémon in the game, and it was weak only to Grass, Ground, Bug and Steel type attacks. Tyranitar was one of the few Pokémon that could beat Mewtwo consistently, making it the most commonly seen Pokémon on the PvP circuit. Even today, Tyranitar obviously still has its fans.

#33 Rhyhorn

Pokédex Number: 111

Type: Rock/Ground

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Rhyhorn was known for taking the longest to evolve out of any of the original 150 Pokémon. It wouldn't reach its Rhydon evolution until level 42! Although Dragonair reaches its final evolution at level 55, it evolves previously from Dratini at level 30. Rhyhorn was noted as being the darkest or scariest looking Pokémon out of the original 150 as well.

#32 Ludicolo

Pokédex Number: 272

Type: Water/Grass

First Appeared in: Pokémon Ruby/Sapphire

Ludicolo is the final evolution of Lotad. Ludicolo is a popular Pokémon because of its Grass/Water dual types, which make it weak only to Poison, Flying and Bug attacks. It has very high stats in all categories and learns the best move of both types, prompting many players to consider Ludicolo the best Grass type Pokémon in the game. In the anime, Brock had a Ludicolo that evolved all the way from a Lotad.

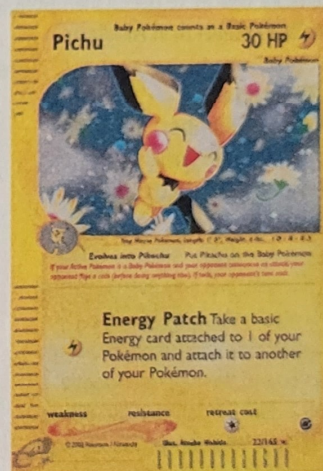

#31 Pichu

Pokédex Number: 172

Type: Electric

First Appeared in: Pokémon Gold/Silver

Pichu is the pre-evolved form of Pikachu. It is best known due to a tandem of mischievous Pichus known as the Pichu Bros. that appeared in multiple animated shorts before Pokémon movies. Pichu has also appeared in the video game Super Smash Bros. Brawl. A Pichu evolves into a Pikachu only when it is especially happy.

#30 Gastly

Pokédex Number: 92

Type: Ghost/Poison

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

The Gastly family were the first Ghost type Pokémon in the game. Gastly is an exceptional Pokémon that is only weak against Dark, Psychic and Ghost attacks. The original triad of Ghost Pokémon were always popular due to their high Speed and Special stats. They're also well designed, and many Pokémon fans consider Gastly one of the coolest looking of the original 151. In the anime, there is a Gastly that can speak like a human in the same way Team Rocket's Meowth can.

#29 Kadabra

Pokédex Number: 64

Type: Psychic

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Kadabra was the main Pokémon of gym leader Sabrina in the Kanto seasons of Pokémon. If you could catch a Kadabra in the wild in Pokémon Yellow, it would know the move Kinesis. At that point, that was the only way a Kadabra could know that move. The Abra family has always been considered the most powerful Psychic type Pokémon grouping (not including Legendary Pokémon) and Kadabra was more useful than Abra and easier to obtain than Alakazam.

#28 Gengar

Pokédex Number: 94

Type: Ghost/Psychic

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Gengar will only evolve from a Haunter when it is traded to another Pokémon Trainer. Gengar has one of the highest Speeds and Special Attacks in the game, making it very dangerous. Gengar is also fun to use as an annoyer with moves like Confuse Ray, Hypnosis, Dream Eater, Curse and Night Shade. Gengar lowers the temperature of the immediate area around it by ten degrees.

#27 Zubat

Pokédex Number: 41

Type: Poison/Flying

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Zubat is one of the most common Pokémon in the game. It can be found nearly everywhere, especially in games that have a Day/Night aspect to them. In fact, the only game where you CAN'T catch a Zubat is in Pokémon Coliseum. Most of Zubat's attacks cause its opponent to miss their turn via flinching, but Zubat itself is immune to the Flinch status effect.

#26 Poliwhirl

Pokédex Number: 61

Type: Water

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Poliwhirl is the middle evolution of the Poliwhag family. In Japan, Poliwhirl was one of the three original mascots for Pokémon, along with Pikachu and Clefairy. In fact, Poliwhirl was the very first Pokémon ever created. Although much more popular in Japan, Poliwhirl obviously has a very strong fan base across the world if it managed to come in at the halfway point on our countdown!

#25 Wobbuffet

Pokédex Number: 202

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Silver/Gold

Wobbuffet's popularity can be garnered from its membership in Team Rocket. Wobbuffet never fails to provide comic relief for viewers of the anime. Wobbuffet is the only Pokémon that can not attack directly. Instead it can only use counter attack moves like Counter and Mirror Coat. Wobbuffet is also known for having very low stats, but an amazing amount of Hit Points that can go as high as 600!

#24 Nidoking

Pokédex Number: 34

Type: Poison/Ground

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Nidoking is only weak against Water, Ground, Ice and Psychic attacks, and for the first generation of games, was considered the best of the Poison type Pokémon. Nidoking is the final evolution of the male Nidorino line. One can only evolve a Nidorino into a Nidoking with the help of a Moon Stone. A trainer should try to evolve their Nidorino into a Nidoking by level 23 if they want to learn Thrash, Earth Power and Megahorn.

#23 Dialga

Pokédex Number: 483

Type: Steel/Dragon

First Appeared in: Pokémon Diamond

Dialga is the highest ranked Pokémon that did not originate in R/G/B. It is the living incarnation of Time and is the focus of Pokémon Diamond. It is also the third highest ranked Legendary Pokémon on the countdown. Dialga's signature move is Roar of Time, which is a Dragon type special attack that works like a Hyper Beam.

#22 Bulbasaur

Pokédex Number: 1

Type: Poison/Ground

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Bulbasaur may be the weakest overall out of all 12 starter Pokémon, but that doesn't keep him from having a legion of fans. Bulbasaur was in Ash's main six Pokémon longer than any other except Pikachu. He is also the only one of the Kanto starters that Ash still has, even though Bulbasaur currently resides with Professor Oak back in Pallet Town.

#21 Magikarp

Pokédex Number: 129

Type: Water

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Although Magikarp is considered the worst Pokémon in the game, it actually has better overall stats than Weedle! Magikarp is a joke Pokémon that generally can only splash around. Even so, it's obvious that Pokémon fans love this poor little koi (it's not actually a carp). On two separate occasions, Team Rocket's James has had a Magikarp in his possession. Both times turned out badly for James when Magikarp evolved...

#20 Flareon

Pokédex Number: 136

Type: Fire

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Flareon is one of seven evolutions for Eevee. In order to evolve into a Flareon, a Trainer must touch Eevee with a Fire Stone. This is the only Eevee evolution to make the countdown. What makes Flareon so popular? Could it be its super high Attack score or its Flash Fire special ability? Flareons haven't appeared in the anime very often, and when they have it's always been in an episode where all of the Eevee evolutions take center stage. Somehow though, this particular evolution seems to have captured the hearts of Pokémon Trainers.

#19 Zapdos

Pokédex Number: 145

Type: Electric/Flying

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Zapdos has always been the best of the Legendary bird trio from Kanto, and it seems it's also the most popular of them. Only weak to Rock and Ice attacks, Zapdos is frequently seen on competitive teams and is regularly used to capture other Legendary Pokémon.

#18 Blastoise

Pokédex Number: 9

Type: Water

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Blastoise is the final evolution for Squirtle, the original Water starter. Blastoise has become a popular Pokémon thanks to a Youtube video showing a small child getting very hyper over receiving a Blastoise CCG card. Blastoise has never been featured prominently in the anime. Gary Oak, Ash's first rival, has one.

#17 Dragonair

Pokédex Number: 148

Type: Dragon/Flying

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Dragonair is the middle evolution of the Dratini family. I'm a little bit confused as to why Dragonair is so popular, but Dratini and Dragonite didn't make the top 50. Although Dragonair is part Flying type, it has no wings. It is also found primarily in the Water with a fishing rod, yet it's not a Water type. It does naturally learn Water Tail at level 33 though.

#16 Cubone

Pokédex Number: 104

Type: Ground

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Cubone's original name was to be Orphan due to the events surrounding Lavender Tower in the original R/G/B games. It wears the skull of its mother and uses one of her bones (a femur) in battle. Cubone is the only Pokémon whose face has never been seen due to it wearing its mother's skull. The Cubone family are the only known Pokémon where the adult form appears to die soon after childbirth. It's a very sad story, and I think that's why so many people chose Cubone as their favorite Pokémon.

#15 Gyarados

Pokédex Number: 130

Type: Water/Flying

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Gyarados is one of the most angry and violent Pokémon. It's hard to believe it evolved from the timid and weak little Magikarp. Gyarados is one of the most powerful Pokémon, yet it is unable to learn any Flying moves, including Fly, even though that is one of its types. Gyarados' raw power, combined with the huge difference between it and its previous form, has made it a long standing favorite with Pokémon fans everywhere.

#14 Magmar

Pokédex Number: 126

Type: Fire

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Magmar is one of those Pokémon that is just so weird, people can't help but love it. It's a flaming duck! Magmar has always been a tournament worthy Pokémon with its ability to learn moves like Thunder Punch and Confuse Ray, but as of D/P, it's now even better because it has a new final evolution in Magmortar. Magmar is best known in the anime for being part of the first ever two-part Pokémon episode in which Magmar fought with Charizard over the Cinnabar Island Gym Badge.

#13 Scyther

Pokédex Number: 123

Type: Bug/Flying

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Scyther was the most popular Bug type Pokémon in the first generation of games, and he got even bigger when they gave him the Scizor evolution in Silver/Gold. Scyther has a very unique and cool look that draws Pokémon fans to it. It was also one of the three main Pokémon used by Tracy in the Orange Island episodes of Pokémon.

#12 Charmander

Pokédex Number: 4

Type: Fire

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Charmander is my favorite of all the starter Pokémon, and it appears a lot of you agree with me. In the anime, Ash's Charmander was abandoned by its original trainer and nearly died from exposure to the elements until Ash saved it. Charmander is one of those Pokémon that appeals to everyone due to its cuteness, its strength and move set, and its ability to evolve into Charizard.

#11 Mewtwo

Pokédex Number: 150

Type: Psychic

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Until D/P, Mewtwo was the most powerful Pokémon of them all. It still has a higher Special Attack and Speed than Arceus though. Mewtwo was a huge reward in the original game that could only be obtained when you had beaten the game and then dared to venture into the Unknown Dungeon. Even today, it is one of the most sought after and used Pokémon due to its awesome power. The very first Pokémon movie features Mewtwo and its attempts to find its place in the world. It is the very first Pokémon created by humans, rather than nature.

#10 Squirtle

Pokédex Number: 7

Type: Water

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Squirtle has always been a popular Pokémon. It's cute, it's a strong starter and it played a major role in the first few years of the anime series. Ash's Squirtle was the leader of the Squirtle Squad, a group of anti-heroes that took on humans as well as Pokémon. Squirtle is a great first Pokémon to have as it's very defensive and allows first time Trainers to learn the ins and outs of the video game.

#9 Alakazam

Pokédex Number: 65

Type: Psychic

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Alakazam is the final form of the Abra family. It will only evolve when you trade Kadabra to another trainer. Aside from Mewtwo, Alakazam was the most powerful of all Psychic Pokémon in the first generation of games. Alakazam was also the most powerful card in the original base set of the Pokémon CCG. Although it has only had a few appearances in the anime, it's obvious that Alakazam's other roles within Pokémon have helped make it one of the most popular Pokémon there is.

#8 Snorlax

Pokédex Number: 143

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Snorlax is the best overall Normal type Pokémon save for Arceus. It has extremely high stats and its Rest Attack and Thick Fat abilities make it one of the top tier Pokémon for trainer vs. trainer battles. It's also a giant chubby kitty, and what's not to love about that? Ash Ketchum has a Snorlax and it's proven itself to be his most powerful Pokémon on many occasions, although because it eats so much, Ash only brings it out for his most important battles.

#7 Clefairy

Pokédex Number: 35

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Clefairy is personally my favorite Pokémon and the original mascot for Pokémon before the anime series. Clefairy's signature move, Metronome, has the ability to copy any other Pokémon move in existence... although you never know which effect you'll have until you use it. Clefairy and its family are the only Pokémon not from Earth besides Deoxys.

#6 Pikachu

Pokédex Number: 25

Type: Electric

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

I was shocked Pikachu wasn't in the Top 5! Pikachu is, after all, the face of Pokémon. It's the most well-known Pokémon and the one that's most commonly turned into products like stuffed animals or toys. Still, being the sixth out of nearly 500 is nothing to complain about. Pikachu has still earned its place as one of the best known characters in all of pop culture, and it'll never stop being the main Pokémon for the franchise.

#5 Eevee

Pokédex Number: 133

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

It's easy to see why Eevee is so loved. Not only is it adorable, but it can evolve in seven different ways. Eevee is one of the only non Fire/Water/Grass starter in the history of Pokémon thanks to Pokémon XD. Because there are so many forms of Eevee that you need to complete your Pokédex, a common practice is to place an Eevee and a Ditto in a Pokémon Day Care and let them pop out egg after egg until you have enough for one of each of Eevee's evolutionary forms.

#4 Meowth

Pokédex Number: 52

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Sometimes it just pays to be bad. There's no doubt that Meowth's strong showing in this popularity poll was due to the talking, scheming, downright naughty Pokémon that can be seen as a member of Team Rocket with Jessie and James. Meowth's ability to speak in human tongues as well as devise one insane, grandiose plan after another to help Team Rocket capture Pikachu makes him one of your favorites.

#3 Psyduck

Pokédex Number: 54

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Misty may have been gone from the anime for far longer than she was ever on it, but you've made it obvious that she's not forgotten. Misty's dim-witted Pokémon Psyduck appears in the top three! It's obvious that you love Psyduck for its comic relief potential and its cute glassy eyed stare. With a Water type and a variety of Psychic attacks, Psyduck isn't a bad choice in the video games either. It's nice to see that in the age of Diamond & Pearl, one of the classic anime characters is still one of the most beloved. Psi-yi-yi!

#2 Charizard

Pokédex Number: 6

Type: Fire/Flying

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

I don't think anyone is surprised by Charizard showing up with the silver medal. It's the best overall Fire starter in the video games, the most sought after Pokémon TCG card of all time, one of the most popular characters from the anime, and people of all types gravitate to its classical dragon form and powers. When I played Pokémon for the very first time, I chose Charmander as my starter simply because I knew it would eventually become a Charizard. I have a feeling many of you did the same.

#1 Jigglypuff

Pokédex

Number: 39

Type: Normal

First Appeared in: Pokémon Red/Blue/Green

Ah, Jigglypuff. If there's ever proof that a Pokémon can make sporadic appearances in the cartoon and win our hearts, it's you. Jigglypuff was never very useful or powerful in the video games, but it's the anime that lets the character shine. Thanks to a specific Jigglypuff who just wanted to be a famous singer, this Pokémon was chosen by you the fans as the most popular out of all 493 Pokémon. From its powerful appearances in Super Smash Bros. to an entire song written about it on the Pokémon: the Third Move soundtrack, Jigglypuff's silly actions and wacky antics have propelled it past even Pikachu in terms of popularity. Way to go Jigglypuff!

Those are the top 50 most popular Pokémon. I'm sure that if/when we do this again, the order will be shaken up a bit. After all, Jigglypuff beat Charizard by a single vote for the #1 position. Who will be the most popular Pokémon next time?

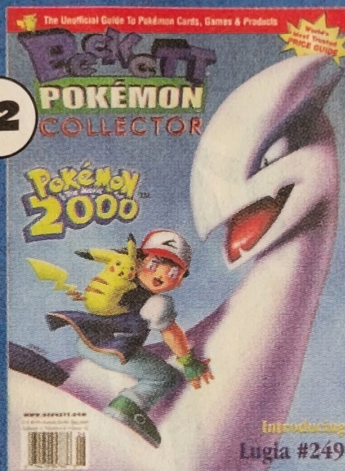

Top 5 Magazine Issues

It's been a wild and wacky road to issue #100. Over the years I've had many fans ask me which Pokémon issues were my favorites. So, I've gone back into the archives and hand-picked my Top 5 favorites. Here they are:

1. Issue #1

This has to be my number one favorite because it's the issue that started it all. It features Ash and Pikachu on the front. This was the first publication to also include a comprehensive price guide to Pokémon cards.

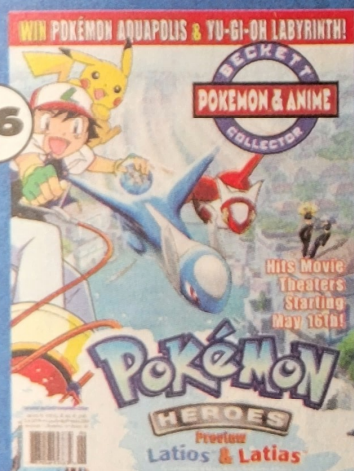

2. Issue #12

I love this cover because I'm a big fan of Lugia. Plus, I smile every time I look at the expression on Pikachu's face.

3. Issue #23

This cover was the first time we ever featured Celebi on the front. When you spread out the back and front cover, you can also see Marvin the Martian from the Bugs Bunny cartoons getting burned by Charizard's flames next to the flying saucer behind Celebi.

4. Issue #46

Miramax Films gave us an exclusive image from the Pokémon Heroes movie poster to feature on the front cover of this issue. You can see Latios and Latias flying past Ash and Pikachu. It's awesome!

5. Issue #47

This has to be one of the most fun and playful covers we've ever had. It features the new Ruby and Sapphire Pokémon: Mudkip, Treecko and Torchic. When I look at Treecko it makes me want to get up and dance.

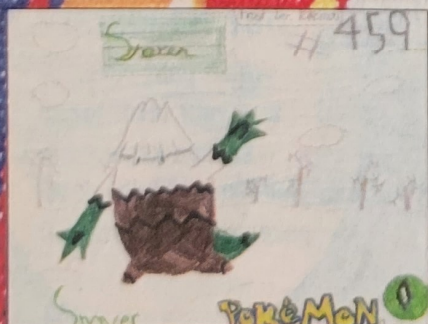

Hey Readers!

Which past cover was your favorite? Let me know.

HOW TO USE

What's Listed

Products listed in the Price Guide typically: 1) are produced by licensed manufacturers, 2) are widely available and 3) have market activity on single items.

What the Columns Mean

The LO and HI columns reflect current retail selling ranges. The HI column on the right generally represents the full retail selling price. The LO column on the left generally represents the lowest price one would expect to find with extensive shopping.

What the Arrows Mean

Up arrows denote prices that went up since the last issue. Down arrows denote prices that went down since the last issue. Arrows don't mean a card or set is "going up" or "going down."

Grading

All cards in the Price Guide are based on Near Mint to Mint condition. Damaged cards are generally sold for 25 to 75 percent of Mint value. Toy prices are based on mint condition. Toys that are loose (out of package), are generally sold for 50 percent of the listed price.

Currency

This Price Guide is intended to reflect the entire North American market. All listed prices are in U.S. dollars.

PRICE GUIDE & CHECKLIST

HOW TO USE

What's Listed

Products listed in the Price Guide typically: 1) are produced by licensed manufacturers, 2) are widely available and 3) have market activity on single items.

What the Columns Mean

The LO and HI columns reflect current retail selling ranges. The HI column on the right generally represents the full retail selling price. The LO column on the left generally represents the lowest price one would expect to find with extensive shopping.

What the Arrows Mean

Up arrows denote prices that went up since the last issue. Down arrows denote prices that went down since the last issue. Arrows don't mean a card or set is "going up" or "going down."

Grading

All cards in the Price Guide are based on NMint to Mint condition. Damaged cards are generally sold for 25 to 75 percent of Mint value. Toy prices are based on mint condition. Toys that are loose (out of package), are generally sold for 50 percent of the listed price.

Currency

This Price Guide is intended to reflect the entire North American market. All listed prices are in U.S. dollars.

Legend

(PR) - Parallel Rare card. These cards have a special sparkling-coated film (usually shiny), which separates it from its twin. The name of the card is printed with gold foil.

(R) - Rare card. The name of the card is printed in silver foil.

(SCR) - Secret Rare card. The name of the card is printed in silver foil. These cards are glossy and feature a sparkling holographic illustration.

(SP) - Short Printed card.

(SSP) - Super Short Printed card.

(SR) - Super Rare card. The illustrations on these cards are printed with a foil background.

(UR) - Ultra Rare card. The name of the card is printed in gold foil. The illustration and sometimes the frame contain a foil background.

(UTR) - Ultimate Rare card. Gold foil lettering & holographic picture with a raised image (embossed).

Please Note:

Beckett does not sell single Yu-Gi-Oh cards.

GET YOUR GAME

WITH THE COOLEST MONSTERS A

Controlling monsters and directing them to attack is a big part of Pokémon: it's why you collect and train them. However, if battling really gets your blood pumping then you should take a look at the monsters of Yu-Gi-Oh! They're big, they're strong and you never have to use just one. No matter what kind of creature you like, there's a perfect monster just waiting for you to discover in the Yu-Gi-Oh! Trading Card Game.

There are thousands of monsters to collect, so you're sure to find plenty that you'll like. Whether your favorite monsters are big or small, scaly or furry, there is something for everyone. Fire monsters, water monsters, wind monsters, earth monsters and more! Yu-Gi-Oh! monsters come from just about everywhere – some are totally original, and others step straight out of European myths, Japanese folklore, ancient history and even board games!

Since completely new monsters are released with each set, Yu-Gi-Oh! is an exciting game to collect – you'll never get bored with it. Sometimes old monsters come back with new looks and new abilities, as well as newer monsters that support the ones you already have. You'll never know when your favorite monster might get even better.

In Yu-Gi-Oh!, you can use whatever monsters you want in your deck. Since you don't need to evolve them or give them specific energy cards, you can play all of your best monsters together. You won't have to choose just one to fight for you, either – you can have up to five monsters out at once, and they can all attack! Play your cards right and you'll dish out devastating damage in just one turn. If you like team battles in Pokémon, this is even better!

Lots of Yu-Gi-Oh! monsters have cool effects that also work even if they aren't attacking. Your monster doesn't have to sit there defenselessly on your opponent's turn – many Yu-Gi-Oh! monsters can strike back when your opponent's monsters go after them.

The exciting part about playing Yu-Gi-Oh! is that you're not just pretending to be a Trainer; you're a real Duelist, just like in the TV show. You command your monster cards, wield mighty spells and set clever traps to achieve victory. By choosing the cards that reflect who you want to be, you create your own character. With so many monsters to choose from and so many different strategies to explore, there's nothing holding you back from creating your own style within the Yu-Gi-Oh! Trading Card Game! ♦

Dueling with the Coolest Monsters

Lots of things can make monsters cool - big attacks, great effects or just how it looks.
Check out our picks for the coolest monsters of all time!

Cyber Dragon:

This is Zane Truesdale's signature monster in the Yu-Gi-Oh! GX television series, but in real life almost everybody uses this massive Machine-type card! Cyber Dragon's got a huge attack, and there's no cost to play it if it's your only monster. Plus, you can fuse two or even three copies of Cyber Dragon into a new, incredibly powerful monster! You can find the Cyber Dragon card in Zane Truesdale Duelist Packs or the newly released Duelist Pack Collection mini-tin.

Light and Darkness Dragon:

Dark and Light attributes come together to create one of the most amazing-looking monsters ever! This Dragon is a heavy-hitter for tournaments too, with huge attack power and an effect that can stop almost any other card! Pick up the Light and Darkness Dragon in a special Light and Darkness Power Pack at Wal-Mart.

Volcanic Doomfire:

The Volcanic monsters are all about damaging your opponent while messing with their monsters - most Volcanics don't even have to attack to cause damage. Volcanic Doomfire is the ultimate monster from this monster group, and instead of attacking, it lures other monsters into a deadly magma blast that clears the field! The Volcanic Doomfire card can be found in Force of the Breaker booster packs or in the special Volcanic Doomfire collectible tin.

Ultimate Tyranno:

Yu-Gi-Oh! even has dueling dinosaurs! Ultimate Tyranno is one of the meanest Dinosaur monsters ever - imagine if your fossil evolved into THAT? Its claws and jaws make for crushingly wicked attack power, and it's so fast that it can attack all of your opponent's monsters by itself. You can find the Ultimate Tyranno card in Power of the Duelist booster packs or the Dinosaur's Rage Structure Deck.

HOW TO USE THIS PRICE GUIDE

WHAT'S LISTED

All Webkinz products listed in the price guide are licensed by Ganz and carry a secondary market value.

WHAT THE COLUMNS MEAN

The LO and HI columns reflect current retail selling ranges. The HI column on the right generally represents the full retail selling price. The LO column on the left generally represents the lowest price one would expect to find with extensive shopping.

WHAT THE ARROWS MEAN

Up arrows denote prices that went up since the last issue. Down arrows denote prices that went down since the last issue. Arrows don't mean an item "going up" or "going down."

GRADING AND VALUES

All items in this Price Guide are based on NRMint to Mint condition. Damaged items are generally sold for 25 to 75 percent of Mint value. All values in this guide are for Webkinz with unused tags and codes.

1ST EDITIONS

Most 1st Edition Webkinz are missing the "W" on their paw. These generally sell for 20% to 50% more than later editions.

CURRENCY

The Price Guide is intended to reflect the entire North American market.

All prices are in U.S. dollars.
